

I do not grieve
for life or death,

For I am more than
form and breath.

I lived before
this life began,

And I will live
beyond its span.

From child to youth,
from age to age,

My body turns another page.

As worn-out clothes
are laid away,

I take a newer form one day.

Yet I remain
untouched and whole,

清風

The deathless,
never-changing soul.

Pleasure comes
and pain will leave,

I meet them both,
but do not grieve.

I treasure what
will always stay,

吾愛

Not passing things
that fade away.

I know what's timeless,
what is brief,

原臺寺

This wisdom frees
my heart from grief.

新美

I am no hero,
none to blame,

桂梯

Beyond all roles,
I stay the same.

No sword can cut,
no fire can burn,

如摩帝

No earthly force
can make me turn.

No water wets,
no wind can dry;

鏡
子

I cannot perish,
cannot die.

Though mortal flesh
may fade from sight,

I stay immeasurable
light.

津
凌
高

Unseen, unbroken,
vast and free,

The endless Self abides in me.

黃澍

It fills the earth,
the stars, the sky,

更緯肯

Unmoved as all things pass me by.

Both life and death
will come and go,

善
月

Like restless waves
that rise and flow.

So I release my
fear and pain;

What I truly am
will still remain.

嘉德堂

Few understand
this mystery,

無塵子

The soul lives
on eternally.

書業

But when this truth
is clear to me,

I let go and I am free.

GOLDEN LIGHT